

Hi! I'm Dexter Procter,

I've always felt slightly different from the other kids. For example, I started speaking when I was four seconds old and had 87 A-Levels by the time I was five. Now I'm ten and I'm the world's youngest ever doctor. You can stop applauding now.

I hear you're in hospital at the moment, so I wondered if you fancied helping me out while you're here and becoming a doctor just like me? (Well, not exactly like me – you don't need to do 87 A-levels.)

And don't worry, you don't have to sit through any long lectures or boring exams. All you need to do is solve a few perplexing puzzles and cheeky challenges, then once we're done, you'll get your very own certificate proving that you're now a fully qualified doctor.*

So grab a pencil, boot up your brilliant brain and let's make you a mini medic!

Dexter Procter (the 10-year-old doctor)
